In para 73 of Chapter VIII of their Report the Prison Reforms Committee recommend that where a prisoner is seriously ill, it may often be advisable for the prison authorities, on their own initiative or at the request of the prisoner, to send intimation of the fact to any known friend or near relative of his, and to allow the latter to have reasonable access to the patient.

The I. G. of Prisons states that this has been the practice, and suggests that as a rule to the effect may be introduced. This suggestion may perhaps be accepted.
